

Fall into Winter Fashion 2002

Fashion changes every few months just like the seasons. As time changes from late fall to winter, so does the fashion from T-shirts to sweaters and from silk scarves to wool scarves and hats.

To get a glimpse of the latest styles, freshman Jenni Sexton and junior Paul Von Seggern subjected themselves to our mock photo shoot. With the help of Kim Engdahl, The Buckle manager, and Eric Luebke and Marty Smith, sales associates, here is a winter fashion showing of "what's hot" for this season.

Sexton takes a look at another outfit. She has layered the tops that includes a blue-turquoise tank-top, a Renaissance-looking shirt and brown leather jacket that is short to the waist. Accessories include a star necklace with turquoise, brown, scarlet and gold colors and a leather belt that wraps around and ties at the front side.

Sexton is wearing one of the top accessories of the year — a large, wool scarf. It is used with a jacket and basic white and colored shirtsleeved T-shirts. For pants, it's just denim blue jeans, brown boots and a brown belt.

Von Seggern kneels in casual attire. Topped with a knitted hat, other accessories include a shell necklace, watch and beaded bracelet. Classic denim jeans, a forest green T-shirt over a white T-shirt and matching green plaid button shirt finish the look.

Von Seggern may feel lucky in these cloths. He is wearing comfortable cotton in jeans, name-branded T-shirt, hooded jacket and metal necklace.

Sexton and Von Seggern feature a semi-dressy look. Sexton is wearing jeans with a yellow top and a velvet-like shirt over it all. Brown, healed boots and a wide belt assist in the look. For Von Seggern, he is sporting a leather jacket over a red sweater.
